

Employment First Resource List

Revised September 2013

Introduction

Over the past decade, the concept of Employment First – the idea that employment in integrated settings within the community should be the priority service option - has emerged in the disability field. The result has been ongoing development of a multitude of documents pertaining to Employment First, including state legislation, policies, reports, articles, etc. The attached list, developed by the State Employment Leadership Network (SELN), is an attempt to provide a comprehensive listing of these documents, as a resource to policymakers, advocates, and others. A primary emphasis with this list has been to identify legislation, regulations, and policy directives implementing Employment First policies. The list also lists a variety of Employment First related reports from individual states, developed by official state workgroups and grassroots initiatives consisting of coalitions of stakeholders working to affect change. In addition, a variety of documents that provide a national perspective have been included.

In compiling this list, an Employment First policy has been defined as an official directive from a state government agency stating that employment in the community in the general workforce is the first and primary option for individuals with disabilities and/or it is the intent of the state to move in that direction. Use of the term “Employment First” per se has not necessarily been a requirement for including or excluding a document. Instead the focus has been on documents that reinforce the principles of Employment First, whether that specific language is used or not. There are number of examples (e.g., Washington State, Oklahoma) where the term “Employment First” is not part of the policy, and yet clearly the policy is an example of Employment First principles. It should also be noted that there has been a liberal approach to defining a piece of legislation, regulation, or policy directive as an “Employment First policy”. For example, California AB 287, passed in 2009, calls for development of an Employment First policy. However, the actual policy is still under development, including proposed legislation that has yet to be passed. In New Jersey, the Governor has issued public statements declaring New Jersey an Employment First statement, but to date, no official policy statement or Executive Order has been issued.

A summary of the status of Employment First nationally is as follows:

- Employment First efforts have been identified in 42 states.
- Twenty-six states have been identified that have something akin to an official Employment First policy (based on legislation, policy directive, etc.). Twelve states have passed legislation: California, Delaware, Illinois, Kansas, Maine, North Dakota, Ohio, Pennsylvania, Texas, Virginia, Utah, and Washington. The other 14 (Arkansas, Colorado, Connecticut, District of Columbia, Louisiana, Maryland, Massachusetts, Missouri, New Jersey, Oklahoma, Oregon, Rhode Island, Tennessee, Vermont) have a policy directive, Executive Order, or similar official policy statement, but not legislation.

- Eleven of these policies are cross-disability: Arkansas, Delaware, District of Columbia, Illinois, Kansas, Maine, New Jersey, North Dakota, Texas, Virginia, and Utah. The remainder of states with policies, have policies that focus exclusively on individuals with intellectual and developmental disabilities: California, Colorado, Connecticut, Louisiana, Maryland, Massachusetts, Missouri, Ohio, Oklahoma, Oregon, Pennsylvania, Rhode Island, Tennessee, Vermont, Washington.
- In addition to the 26 states with Employment First policies, the other 16 states on this list (Alabama, Florida, Georgia, Idaho, Indiana, Iowa, Kentucky, Michigan, Minnesota, Mississippi, Nevada, New Mexico, New York, North Carolina, South Dakota, Wisconsin) have Employment First efforts and initiatives underway, but at this point it appears no official Employment First policy has been issued.

It is important to recognize that the presence or lack of presence on this list of any state should not necessarily be an indicator regarding the state's focus on employment for people with disabilities. There are a number of states that have not been linked with Employment First, who have consistently had relatively strong outcomes in terms of employment of people with disabilities. However, the emergence of Employment First as a national movement has served as a catalyst for an increased focus on employment of people with disabilities across the United States.

In the course of developing this document, the focus has been on including as many examples as possible, particularly in terms of resources from individual states. The underlying rationale for doing so is to provide an understanding of the wide range of approaches to Employment First. Inclusion of specific policies and documents on this list should in no way be viewed as an endorsement of these documents, and in fact, the Employment First legislation/policies that have been developed vary significantly in terms of the strength and clarity of their language.

The wide range of attention and emphasis on Employment First has been encouraging, and provides a potential catalyst for the long needed increase in workforce participation for individuals with disabilities. At the same time, it is important to recognize that creation of documents, reports, and policies, in and of itself, will not result in increases in workforce participation, without a long-term commitment to action steps that make the Employment First vision a reality for all citizens with disabilities. Setting a vision and direction is a starting point – but it must be done in conjunction with comprehensive systems change that results in shifting of resources towards integrated employment, a service system that provides consistent and high quality employment assistance and supports, and measurement and accountability for achieving employment outcomes. Employment First is also about more than just simply changing how services and supports for people with disabilities are provided – it is a catalyst for and reflective of an ongoing fundamental cultural shift and view by policymakers, public officials, service systems, service providers, employers, and most importantly by individuals with disabilities themselves, that views people with disabilities as full participants in the economic mainstream, working side-by-side with their fellow citizens.
