Remembering a wonderful mother and grandmother

By Patricia Villers

ANSONIA - There's always something.

That was one of my mother's favorite expressions, especially as she got older.

My wonderful mother, Marion McDonald, passed away last Thursday. Coincidentally, I was photographing the sunset (see right) reflected in the Housatonic River just at the time she was passing. I'll have to make a print of it and frame it.

It was a beautiful sunset I just happened to capture when I standing on the Derby Greenway.

I had gone there to take a photo of the colored lights coming from the Boys & Girls Club carnival across the river in Shelton. I thought it might make a nice photo, and it did. But seeing the sunset was indeed a bonus.

My mother was smart, strong, and stubborn, and full of all good things, as I wrote in her obituary.

But I must add she was stubborn in the best of ways. She wanted things done right. She cared that things were done properly.

My mother was truly a caregiver at heart. If anyone she loved didn't feel well she would go into high gear to nurse them back to health.
