

The Broken Mirror
By: Ameer Kabour

The Syrian conflict is not only deepen the wounds between Syrian's but created a new world of painful division, between family members, friends, neighbors, political parties, international countries, religious leaders, and finally the leaders of both sides of the Syrian conflict for creating the holocausts of the 21st century with endless drama:

Our babies crying from the noise of guns, our elderly crying to see their kids leave and never come back, our wife's become widows, our sky change to black color because of the smoke of destruction, our water becomes red because its colored with our kids blood, our streets becomes roads to hell instead of heaven, our birds leave and never come back, but most important our hands became bloody, and our heart stop beating because we became heartless. The history will never erase this part of us and always will be the darkest era.

Our children will never forgive our generation for the painful memories we are leaving in their minds; our parents will never forgive us for destroying their history; our neighboring countries will not forgive us for the struggle to accommodate our refugees; our God will never forgive us for forgetting our basic Islamic roles including love no hate, tolerance no suppression, building no destruction, listening to God messages not human leader messages and guidance; will not forgive us for forgetting the no difference between all Muslims Sunnis or Shiite; God will never forgive us for promoting war instead of peace, killing our brothers Muslims, hating our brothers Shiite or Sunnis, Christian or Kurds, Jewish or Hindus. We come to the conclusion that all of us are going to hell. Because God never wanted to see in our world, in our Islam what is happening?

Our leaders in both sides of the conflict will be asked if not by us by God, Why did you allow this massacre to happen? Why you supported the killing of innocent people? Why you destroyed our humanity? Why is a president care about his power more than the people? Why is a king and a prince from their palaces now suddenly care about the poor and the hunger of Syrians and use that excuse getting to all of you? Why the politicians gave themselves the right to decide on behalf of us the innocent people, listening to kings and presidents instead of us, listening to enemies instead of us, and listening to evil instead of God?

What excuses do we have to allow all of this, one side claim struggling for many years and now time for democracy, its time to take over power and give the people their rights, some claim its time to make Islam the ruling power in the Arab world, some will say we need to end the Assad era. While some on the other side claim people fighting are no human, have no rights, deserve killing, and some claim that staying in power is their right, inheritance right, elected by people with no vote, brought to power to protect powerless people, and then claim that they are the defender of the Arab world against the common enemy which became over time the people of Syria themselves are the enemies they claim.

We want to scream and say shame on all of you, selling your humanity to evil, selling your soles to guns, selling your integrity to kings, selling your country for free. I feel that I want to scream and cry, hit my head against the walls and say stop illusion, stop the lies, stop the crimes, stop the fights, stop all of the talks and move to action because that is what we need, because no matter how much you have reasoning, the Syrian people will never forgive any one who is putting his head in the sands and claim inability to breath.

What is next for all of you: Are you waiting for the Americans to come to finish the job and destroy whatever left in the country? Are you waiting for the Russians to keep supporting the daily destruction and killing? Are you waiting for the king of Saudi and the King of Qatar to come and take all our women to make slave babies for the sake of Sunnis survival? Are you waiting for Iranian's to claim the Shiite victory? Are you waiting for never existed Arab League to become something and to do what they will never do? Are you waiting for Turkey to rebuild the Autumn Empire? Are you waiting for the new Muslims brother in Egypt and Tunisia to form the new government in Syria, since at the end of the war will leave no Syrians? Or are you inviting Israel to expand and send all of us to hell since we do not deserve to be in our own country.

My son asked me a big question, why all of us in the Arab world and Muslims world are like that? I look into the last few hundreds of years and I see the point, I see all of the negatives in every dictionary we created, I find us enjoying the first place in the lack of education, the lack of knowledge, the lack of respect to human being, the lack of believing in Islam as a peaceful and loving religion, the lack of leadership, where the people are nothing but toys, the lack of equality when we treat women different from men, and finally the lack of intelligence when we allow the killing to go on under many excuses. But the most important I believe that we lack the common sense, living the wrong reality, and looking into our mirror while we do not have a mirror.

Probably we have to provide that mirror to each one, to reflect into their mind and heart the reality they have to know.

- A mirror to go to Mr. Assad to see himself in that mirror as a double standard individual, destroying his country to stay in power no matter who are the enemies, the reality in his imagination that he is above it all. Look into the mirror Mr. Assad, time to be a leader to get people together, unite not divide, stop the killing instead of promoting it, and finally may be giving up your power is the best signal to prove the love of the country instead of yourself.

- A mirror to go to the opposition leaders to see in that mirror how they are living in the five stars hotels while refugees in camps. From distance enjoying retaliation from a regime, which rejected them or abused them, drinking their coffee in meetings, while the people are dying every day, saying they will never stop the war fought by other people kids while their kids protected somewhere else. Saying they will not stop the war until the whole country is destroyed to clean Syria from 27 millions right or wrong kissed Assad feet for many years, who you were one of them at one point, allowing the regime to stay in power, you never said no, and now switching to get paid to spit on Assad's feet and willing to do anything for whoever pay more. You had a good cause to start the peaceful revolution, until suddenly you became toys in the hand of others, where they are willing to destroy the country to achieve their goals. Look into the mirror Mr. champions, may be you see yourselves and face the reality of what you are doing.
- A mirror to go to the King of Saudi and the King of Qatar, both of you never being elected, abusing your people, giving them drops of the wealth, your women have no rights, your people have no rights, and suddenly you are the best democracy champions, assuming yourselves the role of God. Look into the mirror your highness, you are not God but some one will face God and has to explain all of what you are doing every where, forgetting that Shiite are Muslim, and killing your brothers is a crime. I wish you had that sense of responsibility in 1948, 1967, 1973, 1983, if you remember what happened in those years, and many years after to remember.
- A mirror to go to The Americans: the democracy champ, the super power, who is looking into other problem while not able to see their own problem, who is demanding democracy in poor countries, but not in oil rich countries, who did not learn from the Iraq experience, where we have now more ethnicity and division than ever, promoting Sunnis against Shiite, and the most important allowing the killing as long as these people are not Americans. You created Al Qaeda in Afghanistan, so what are creating in the Middle East now? Look into your mirror Americans; it's time to be honest with our selves about our goals and reality instead of living the lie of democracy.
- A mirror to go to the Russians: Who are suddenly awakened from a long nap, realizing that they have to get back into their power on the expense of the Syrians, and realizing that Syria is that important one after 40 years of accepting all negatives and suppression in Syria, now willing to negotiate peaceful democratic changes between government and opposition, The problem we know the real motive, and they should look into their own mirror to realize it themselves.

- A mirror to go to the Iranians: Who are the whole world enemy these days, with Syria is the only alliance. In their mind its OK for Syrian to pay the price instead of Iranian's for violating the world decisions. May be you should look into your mirror Iranians and see who are your enemies; for sure it's not Muslim Sunnis or Shiite? You should see in your mirror the innocent people getting killed for the reason of failing Empire.
- A mirror to go to the Turkish; the unknown player, the one who is planning the new Empire, taking advantage of the Arab invitation to be a good partner and guest, now became unwelcome because they decided to destroy every one else to survive the Empire. Look into your mirror, and see that in history no Empire survived based on destruction and injustice.
- A mirror to go to the Arab league: the non existing institution, the one never agreed on any decision, the one always say but not do, the one suddenly become active, defending democracy never knew, and becoming the new leader in the Arab spring, while getting paid by countries to be their dummies and puppies, to say and do what they want them to say and do. Look into your mirror, may be your conscious will wake up and become something for good thing instead of directing the festival of jokes.

I see all sides point of view, but I do not see in it any logic, I cant find any explanations for all of what is happening, the problem that all the parties involved have no mirrors, its prohibited in their countries and palaces, because they do not want to see themselves, they do not want to face the reality of what they are doing. I wish we can buy those mirrors and send them to all involved parties to see themselves, with a video to reflect into those mirrors what they have done and caused in the last few years, caused destructions, tears, killing, refugees, may be they will remember its time to stop. May be their conscious will bring back a clear mirrors with no shadows, no broken pieces, to reflect a better future, tolerance, love, and peace.

I call on all of the Syrians, government and opposition, I call on all the Arabs Sunnis and Shiites, I call on all of the Western and Eastern Europe, I call on the Americans and Russians, I call on all our kids and elderly, women and men, black and white, and I call on every human being believing in humanity, believing in God, that its time to wake up, time to be civil, time to think about tomorrow not yesterday, think about our kids not ourselves, think about peace not war, think about negotiation not rejection, and think about love but not hate.
