Les Petits Sourires To Open at Stonehenge Village

New York, NY- Stonehenge NYC, a leading real estate company in Manhattan, announced today that bi-lingual English-French preschool, Les Petits Sourires will open in the retail portion of the residential building, Stonehenge Village, at 120 West 97th Street.

Les Petits Sourires, is an English-French bilingual Preschool Program founded by Miss Rose Hanson. The school's philosophy is structured around 'A Childhood Education with a French Twist,' a concept that not only focuses on the French and English languages but also on enrichment programs including music, sports and studio arts. The preschool will be 1,450 square feet and will open their doors January 2017. The school will operate under an intimate child-central educational focus with fewer than 25 children ages 2 to 5 providing a 1-5 ratio between teachers and children.

"We are delighted to welcome Les Petits Sourires to Stonehenge Village," said Ofer Yardeni, chairman and CEO of Stonehenge NYC. "Their unique and refreshing approach to education will benefit the community."

"Through words, songs, and stories, we will provide students with opportunities for cross-cultural enrichment to gain a better understanding of French and American culture". Rose Hanson

Stonehenge NYC residents will receive a 10% discount; wait list priority and referral rewards of 50% off a month of daycare. Beginning in January of 2017 Les Petits Sourires will begin touring families through the preschool every Thursday of December between 5-7pm as well as private tours by request. Please email info@lespetitssourires.org if you would like to join Les Petits Sourires open house
