

Lars Lønstrup

(Updated November 2013)

Department of Business & Economics
University of Southern Denmark
Campusvej 55, Odense
Denmark
Phone: +45 21 27 84 91

loe@sam.sdu.dk
<https://sites.google.com/site/larslonstrup/curriculum-vitae>

Research	Theories of long run economic growth and development, Population economics, human capital accumulation
Affiliation	Assistant Professor at Department of Business and Economics, University of Southern Denmark, 2011-present
Education	University of Southern Denmark, Department of Business and Economics 2011: PHD in Economics 2008: M.Sc. in Economics 2006: B.A. in economics.
Affiliation	Brown University (September 2012 - May 2013) Brown University (August 2010 – December 2010): Visiting Prof. Oded Galor. University of Groningen (September 2009 – December 2009)
Publications	Can higher life expectancy induce more schooling and earlier retirement? Journal of Population Economics 2012, 25: 4 , 1249–1264.
Working papers	The Rise of Life Expectancy and Economic Growth in the 20th Century (with Casper Worm Hansen) Life expectancy, technical change and the demographic transition: The non-monotonic impact of increasing life expectancy on economic growth Increasing Life Expectancy and the Fall and Rise in the Retirement Age (with Casper Worm Hansen)
Research grants	2011 Danish Research Council

Experience 2012-present Assistant professor at University of Southern Denmark
2011-2012: Post-doc at University of Southern Denmark
2008- 2011: PHD student at University of Southern Denmark
2010: Consulting the World Bank (dynamic macroeconomic modeling)
2006-2008: Teaching assistant at University of Southern Denmark.
2002-2003: Military service.

Teaching experience University of Southern Denmark
2013 Advanced Macroeconomic Analysis
2013 Macroeconomic Analysis
2011 Financial Risk Management (Lecturer)
2009 Intermediate Microeconomics
2008 Intermediate Macroeconomics

Languages Danish (native), English (fluent), German (intermediate)