READING

The piranha, in spite of its tiny size, is one of the most feared fish in the world. Piranhas live in the Aaron River, have very sharp teeth, and are capable of eating four times their body weight daily. This would not be so bad, if it were not for the way they attack in numbers. Even the smallest movement, like splashing your hand in the water, is enough to attract 300 piranhas in an instant. A piranha attack can transform a live cow into a skeleton in a matter of minutes. When there is nothing else to eat, they will even eat each other.

78) According to the passage, the piranha_____.

- a) is the world's smallest fish
- b)would not be so bad if it was better understood
- c)has sharp teeth and a large appetite
- d)lives largely on a diet of its own species

- a) feed on each other

- a) feed on each other
- b) migrate to other rivers
- c) get smaller in size
- d) face a decline in their numbers

World population is increasing at an alarming rate, despite birth control and family planning. It is estimated that by the year 2060, the Earth will have 10 billion people. Governments, and particularly governments of developing countries, will face major challenges to provide for their growing populations. The first and the most obvious challenge is to provide an adequate food supply. Next is to build adequate housing. Severe unemployment will also be a problem if new jobs are not created in accordance with the increasing population. The last, and the possibly most important, is the challenge of providing education for everyone.

81) The author believes that _____.

- a) the effects of growing populations will be felt worse in developing countries
- b) there will be few developing countries by the year 2060
- c) unemployment is more important than shortage of housing
- d) everyone has a right to a free education

POPULAR vs. QUALITY NEWSPAPERS

Students of English as a foreign language often ask teachers which newspapers to read. They naturally suppose that reading an English newspaper will be a good way of improving their knowledge of the language. But they are frequently disappointed because they cannot understand popular newspapers and think the 'quality' newspapers will be even more difficult. In fact the opposite is usually the case. Popular newspapers are written for people who haven't got much time for reading and who, perhaps do not read as fast or enjoy reading as much as people who buy 'quality' newspapers. So, the editors try to attract the readers' attention with sensational headlines in big black type. The headlines do not explain the content of the news item underneath. On the contrary they are often designed to puzzle the reader so that he will be persuaded to read the item to find out the meaning of the headline! Apart from that, they use double meanings, so a foreign reader is usually confused by them. Editors are also afraid that the readers will not be patient enough to read a long paragraph. Therefore almost every sentence becomes a paragraph in itself, which is also a disadvantage for the student of English as a foreign language.

Mark the best choice.

85) Students of English as a foreign language want to read English newspapers because_____.

- a) they are disappointed in the difficulty of newspapers
- b) they don't have much time to read
- c) they think they will learn the language better this way

91) Which of the following is not a disadvantage of a popular newspaper?

- a) The sentences are long
b) The headlines do not explain the content of the news item underneath.
c) foreign readers are confused by the headlines.
d) The headlines are big and black.

The oldest specimens of glass we know of are Egyptian, and it is quite probable that the land of the Pharaohs was the original home of glass. The glass of early Egypt, usually opaque and colored, was made in small pieces for purposes of decoration, or in the form of vases, tiny vessel, or ornamental figures. Many of these glass articles have been found in tombs six thousand years old.

The ancient Egyptians knew not only how to make glass, but how to make exquisite art glass pieces. They also used glass to imitate precious stones. From its earliest years glass has led a double life - one of great usefulness and beauty, and one of glittering pretense.
