The California State University San Bernardino Korean Summer Language Intensive Program invites you to attend a presentation on North Korea that will shine a light on topics about which most of us are completely in the dark. After six trips to North Korea in the last four years, the presenters will share dozens of human-interest stories supported by a gallery of pictures. Their eye-opening insights and perspectives about North Korea will help members of the audience decide how the US and its citizens can best to relate to this mysterious and globally isolated nation that has on more than one occasion challenged U.S. security interests.

No reservations required.
