Callus, Corns & Debridement Techniques

DESCRIPTION

This essential one-day practical workshop in the management of corns and callus, focuses on the different safe and clinically effective methods of managing hyperkeratotic lesions, and the various scalpel and debridement techniques that one can adopt in clinical practice.

What will I learn:

A deeper understanding of the commonly occurring types of hyperkeratotic foot lesions and why they occur.

What different tools and blades are available and how these could be used to reduce callus and enucleate corns. How to manage these lesions both in the short and long term, and what else can be done to prevent their occurrence.

Tools & Equipment:

All tools and materials are provided for use on the course.

Cost of Course:
