

Sage Snider

Education- B.A. in Humanities from Yale University
M.A. in Public Humanities from Brown University

Teaching Experience- teaching since 2003

Instrument(s)-violin, mandolin, voice, flatfoot

Interests-history and museums

Are you left/Right Handed? Right

Are you an Extrovert or Introvert? Introvert

Age Preference-All (I love working with adults too!)

Level Preference-Beginner, especially those interested in American fiddling

Favorite Series/Method-Mark O'Connor and Suzuki Books

Dance/Movement Curriculum-Lots of foot tapping and clapping!

A note from your teacher...

There are so many ways to play violin, so I always design my lessons around each student's unique goals and abilities while also trying to expand their vision of what's possible. Once we figure out your goals, I'll help you put together a fun and realistic practicing plan so learning violin and making music can be rewarding and relevant parts of your life.

About the teacher...

Sage Snider performs fiddle, mandolin, voice, and flatfoot dance in genres ranging from classical and bluegrass to rock and pop. In addition to performing, she also loves learning about and sharing music history. After specializing in the history of Ancient Greek Music as an undergraduate at Yale University, she went on to study American Music in the Public Humanities Master's Program at Brown. Her music and history work have been featured at the Smithsonian, The Yale University Art Gallery, a Providence, RI vocational high school (through the support of a Rhode Island State Council for the Arts' grant), Smugglers' Notch Ski Resort, and the 2014 and 2015 Brown University Folk Festival. Currently, Sage lives in Nashville, TN, where she tutors in history, literature, and test prep and performs with her many beloved instruments--mostly violins.