Visit of the Governor General

This week MHS was privileged to host a visit by Her Excellency, the Governor General of the Commonwealth of Australia, the Honourable Quentin Bryce and Mr Michael Bryce. The purpose of the visit was to acknowledge Her Excellency's personal interest in the work of amateur historian and Old Boy, Mr Lambis Englezos and to present the inaugural Lambis Englezos scholarship created by the MHS Foundation in recognition of a distinguished Old Boy.

For ten years, Mr Englezos dedicated himself to painstaking archival and forensic research to investigate the fate of over 400 soldiers who remained unaccounted for after the Battle of Fromelles on July 19, 1916.

The Battle of Fromelles, in northern France was the first battle in Western Europe in which Australian troops were deployed and has been described by the Australian War Memorial as the worst 24 hours in Australia's history. The newly arrived ANZAC troops were directed to attack a well-entrenched German line, predominantly as a ruse to divert attention from a planned assault elsewhere.

Ordered to advance across ground dominated by fortified enemy machine guns, over 7,000 soldiers were killed with over 5,500 of these being Australian troops. Mr Englezos noted that the bodies of many of those who perished remained unaccounted for and dedicated himself to discovering their fate.

Through careful analysis of archival records, Mr Englezos was convinced that many of these soldiers had been buried in an undiscovered gravesite at Pheasant Woods, behind German lines. He campaigned for a geophysical survey of the target site and in 2008 a preliminary excavation of the site confirmed the existence of mass graves. Over time, the remains of 250 soldiers were exhumed and through DNA testing over 75 of these were able to be identified.

In 2010 the burial of first of these soldiers at a new war cemetery and memorial park nearby was presided over by Prince Charles and the Governor General. In 2009, Mr Englezos was presented with an Order of Australia medal in recognition of his dedication to restoring the identity and dignity of these young men lost nearly 100 years ago.

In a riveting presentation to the Senior School, Mr Englezos brought the history of these lost and forgotten soldiers back to life. Included amongst the dead were nine MHS Old Boys. It was fitting that included amongst the 50 guests who attended the assembly was the Honorary French Consul, Ms Bouisbouvier-Wylie.

In recognition of his remarkable work, the MHS Foundation has created the Lambis Englezos Scholarship to support a MHS student who undertakes tertiary studies with a focus upon French - Australian history and relations. At the special assembly, the Governor General presented a certificate to Year 12 student Aaron Zee as the inaugural Lambis Englezos scholar. Aaron intends to study international law or studies next year and is particularly interested in researching both nations' history in the Asia Pacific.

This was very special occasion not only because of the presence of the Governor General but because she was moved to attend to honour the work of an MHS Old Boy. Her Excellency commented on the aptness of the School motto in describing the importance of Mr Englezos's work in providing final rest and closure for 250 young soldiers lost to their nation and families for nearly a century.

Success of our Students

Congratulations to Year 9 student Kaiwen Cabbabe who recently won the national senior Pokemon championship and will represent Australia at the world championships in Vancouver in August. MHS students truly excel in every field.

IT Committee

Rafit Zaman & Matthew Wong 12B

IT COMMITTEE

The newly formed IT Committee is in need of form representatives. These representatives will be voted in by their peers, and are expected to give a short spiel to their class.

The IT representative will represent the IT-related views and concerns of their form during regular meetings, and will also be trained to help teachers and students with a certain subset of common technical issues. (such as projector use, school WiFi connectivity and StudyWiz use). These students could also possibly be on call if necessary. They must be able to attend and contribute regular meetings to bring up concerns of their form, as well as make suggestions regarding the improvement of the school's IT. Each IT rep is the main form of communication that the IT Committee has with the wider school body. The IT representatives must also have a good 'moral-compass' as they will also oversee issues concerning students' cybersafety. Badges for the recognition of this role are currently under review.

Form representatives must:

- Be committed
- Be willing to help and support other students in need
- Have high moral standards with regards to cyberbullying and the use and abuse of technology.
- Have basic cybersafety knowledge
- Have basic IT skills

IT representative voting will be occurring during an extended form assembly on Tuesday 23 July. All interested applicants should visit itatmhs.wordpress.com for further details.

VICTORIAN YOUNG PHYSICISTS TOURNAMENT - 2013

The Victorian Young Physicists' Tournament is an event for years 10 and 11 students. In teams of three, the students during the year, carry out experimental investigations drawn from a common set, then at the end of the year, in a series of one on one challenges, the teams present and defend their findings in scientific discussions, as well as question the presentations of other teams.

For 2013 the common set of topics are:

- Incandescent Lamp: it is said that one 10 W light bulb shines brighter than two 5 W bulbs. Is it true? Investigate how a small change in supplied voltage will affect light emission and a light bulb's lifetime.
- Flotation: a piece of a flattened raisin, which is dropped into a glass of soda water, periodically sinks and goes back to the surface. Investigate the dependence of the period of these oscillations on various parameters. (Note: a combination of vinegar and bicarb of soda in water also works quite well).
- Bright Waves: illuminate a water tank. When there are waves on the water surface, you can see bright and dark patterns on the bottom of the tank. Study the relation between the waves and the pattern.

The team of three students do all three topics.

The tournament will be held on Wednesday 4 December 2013, which is during the week before Speech Night. The venue is likely to be at Quantum Victoria, near La Trobe University.

N.B. As each school can enter only a limited number of teams, it may be necessary for team selection trials to be held in the week prior, in order to determine the individual student competitors to represent MHS at the 2013 VYPT.

A round robin will be held during the morning and the early afternoon. Each team will compete in six 30 minute contests, three as a reporter and three as an opponent. Each team member will be required to report on one topic and oppose on another. So, each team member will have two opportunities to speak. Following the round robin the best two teams will play off for the final.

Further information is available by following the link: <http://www.vicphysics.org/vypt2013.html>

Prizes: there will be a trophy for the school of the winning team. Members of teams in the finals receive a book and a cash prize. All other participants receive cash prizes.

Students interested in this challenge in 2013 should contact Mr Keyte in person at the T30 physics staff office, or by email to keyte.paul.a@edumail.vic.gov.au and provide their contact details.

HUMAN PAPILLOMAVIRUS (HPV) VACCINE

HPV stands for Human Papillomavirus, a common virus that affects both men and women. It is passed from person to person through sexual contact. There are many different types of HPV which can affect various parts of the body. The HPV virus can cause cancer (cervical, vaginal and vulva in women and penile and anal in men). In 2007 the National HPV Vaccination Program was introduced in Australia and has routinely been provided to girls aged 12-13 in a school based program since then.

At the beginning of the HPV program, the vaccine was commonly known as the cervical cancer vaccine. This was due to the research at the time showing that the HPV virus only caused cancer in women. Further research has been undertaken and it has shown that both men and women are susceptible to the HPV virus. Although cervical cancer is the most common HPV related cancer, the virus also causes genital warts in both males and females and certain cancers in men.

Last year, the Commonwealth Government decided to make boys aged 12-13 years of age eligible to receive the HPV vaccine for free as part of the school based National HPV Program. Boys aged 14-15 years will also be offered the vaccine for free as part of a catch up program until the end of 2014.

The HPV Program is a series of 3 vaccines. The vaccine known as Gardasil protects against the two high risk HPV types (types 16 and 18) which cause 70 % of cervical cancers in women and 90% of HPV related cancers in men. It also protects against two low risk HPV types (types 6 and 11) which cause 90% of genital warts. The schedule for the vaccinations is as follows:

HPV Vaccine 1	HPV Vaccine 2	HPV Vaccine 3
Dose 1	6 weeks after first dose	6 months after first dose

Melbourne High School, together with Stonnington Council, commenced vaccinating our year 9 students earlier this year. The boys have had their second dose and will complete the program in September.

There will be many students in Year 10 who will still be eligible to take part in the HPV vaccine catch up program. Please contact your local council immunisation officer to find out details of when and where you can have the vaccine. If your son turns 16 years of age whilst he is undertaking the course of HPV vaccines there is a charge of $150.00 per vaccine, so get in quickly!

The HPV vaccination program is an important public health initiative. Including boys and girls in this national immunisation program will help reduce these HPV illnesses in the future.

For further details on either the school based program or the catch up program, you can visit www.health.gov.au/internet/publishing.nsf/content/immunise-hpv

COMMUNICATING WITH YOUR ADOLESCENT

Adapted from The Three Magic Words in Relationships Linda & Charlie Bloom <http://blogs.psychcentral.com/relationship-skills/>

If the three magic words in real estate are location, location, location, then the three magic words in relationships are communication, communication, communication. But just as some locations are more desirable than others, some types of communication are more fruitful than others. More talking doesn't necessarily translate into better outcomes. Sometimes, as the song goes, the words just get in the way.

Although we tend to think of good communicators as being good speakers, speaking is only one half of the communication equation. The other, perhaps even more important half, is listening. A good listener is a good communicator because what he or she is helping to produce in that listening is greater understanding and an enhanced connection. While the content of much of our daily communication is about the sharing or transfer of information, in the world of relationships, understanding and connection are the jackpot. Talking, as distinct from communicating doesn't necessarily produce the experience of interconnectedness. If connectedness is what you are looking for, here are a few tips:

1. Set your intention. Be clear within yourself about the experience you wish to create through your communication and acknowledge that to both yourself and to your son.
2. Create Agreement. Check in with your son to see if this is a good time to talk. If it's not, then try to come up with a mutually agreed upon time that works for both of you.
3. Eliminate or minimize distractions. Whenever possible, turn off the T.V., don't answer the phone, don't be available to others, put down the newspaper, and avoid multitasking like driving, working or emailing while you're speaking to each other. Give your son your full attention!
4. Speak from your experience. Express your feelings and thoughts rather than your opinions, criticism, judgment, beliefs, or advice.
5. Don't interrupt. Let your son finish what he's saying before you take your turn. The more complete they feel with what he has to say, the more open and interested in what you have to say he'll be.
6. You can be right or you can relate. Resist the temptation to take issue with something you disagree with. Rather than making your son wrong ("That's not what happened,") let them know your perspective, such as "The way I remember it was..." And keep in mind that it's likely that there's some truth and some distortion in each of your perspectives. Remember: not disagreeing with someone does not mean that you agree with them.
7. Thank your son for accepting your request to talk and find something positive to acknowledge him for, even if it's just his willingness to have engaged in this conversation with you..
8. Keep the dialogue alive. If you run out of time before you both feel complete with the conversation, try to create an agreement to resume it at another time. If possible, be specific about when.

Following these guidelines won't guarantee a successful result every time, but doing so will make that outcome more likely. Non-reactive listening and non-blaming speaking are learned skills that can be cultivated with practise. If you're like most people, you have no shortage of practise opportunities in your life. Take advantage of them and enjoy the process!

THE CITY OF STONNINGTON AND EAST MALVERN JUNIOR FOOTBALL CLUB PRESENTS ... SMART GENERATION PANEL

Did you know? Children who start drinking alcohol early: are less likely to finish school; are more likely to suffer depression, anxiety, bipolar disorder and ADHD; are more likely to experience problems with alcohol in their adulthood; and may actually be doing permanent damage to their brains.

Panel Members

- Andrew Fuller is a clinical psychologist and fellow of the Department of Psychiatry and Education Development at the University of Melbourne.
- Professor John Toumbourou is the chair in health psychology at Deakin University, Honorary Fellow at the Centre for Adolescent Health, Murdoch Children's Research Institute and Royal Children's Hospital.
- Danny Alcock is the community services manager for Taskforce, a leading drug and alcohol agency.

Having a conversation with your children about alcohol can be difficult and confronting. It is important to do, as it will help them stay safe now and be smarter, healthier and happier in the future. The Smart Generation panel will look at how we can help our children understand the risks of drinking alcohol before the legal age of 18.

When: Tuesday 23rd July 2013

Time: 7:15pm arrival for 7:30pm start, ends 9pm

Where: East Malvern Junior Football Club, Dunlop Pavilion, Moira Street, East Malvern

Open Days 2013:

Term 3 is one of the busiest in the year. Year 12 students need to lodge their preferences into VTAC, interstate or overseas, Year 11s need to review their current program of study and Year 10s need to plan their VCE program. To help facilitate all these important decisions, all tertiary institutions provide Open Day activities. These days are important to attend as they give students the opportunity to speak directly to lecturers and current students and investigate not only the differences between courses but also the institutions. I have included a list of the major university and TAFE open days in this newsletter. All years 11 and 12 students will be provided with a more detailed list, which is also available on the MHS app and MHS Connect. Open Day handbooks and information is available online at individual institutional web sites.
