

The Student Voice Conference 2017

---

Empower Students, Enhance Learning

Monday 21 August 2017.

The Hartley Institute, Prince Alfred College,
Adelaide, South Australia.

Facilitated by Louka Parry from Education Changemakers.

Introduction

Student engagement and achievement increases when students have more ownership of their school community and their learning. Schools understand the importance of harnessing student voice, and many schools are making great strides with student voice and student entrepreneurship initiatives.

At Daymap, we constantly seek to engage with schools and like-minded organisations to ensure that we understand the current needs of schools and are working to meet them. When it comes to effectively engaging student voice, we understand that our suite of tools can only support good practice in this space, not create it. So, we wanted to provide an opportunity for educators who want to embed student voice to gather to share and challenge their ideas, and come away empowered to make positive change.

To accomplish this, we are delighted to partner with Education Changemakers and The Hartley Institute to provide a Design Thinking opportunity for educators to identify their goals in activating and engaging the student voice in their classrooms and schools, and then take aim at these goals by identifying roadblocks and formulating solutions. We want to Engage Students to Enhance Learning.

This event is open to all educators Australia-wide who are interested in tapping in to the power of student entrepreneurship. We strongly recommend attending with colleagues to make the most of the experience when you return to your school, and have provided a group discount to support school teams attending.

General Conference Overview

Engage Students, Enhance Learning: Design thinking for educators.

Education Changemakers exists to unleash teacher led innovation in schools by effectively merging the concepts of entrepreneurship and design thinking with the unique demands of education.

In this highly interactive short course, participants will be challenged with disruptive education ideas from around the world, and learn powerful innovation techniques which can be employed to activate and engage student voice in the school and classroom.

Participants will leave with powerful strategies, skills and tangible ideas that will help them to consistently solve the challenges they face in their unique education contexts.

Session One: Introduction to Innovation

- Presenter introduction and background
- Participant opportunity to author facets of the day
- Setting the climate of the day for innovation and active participation.

Session Two: Embedding Innovation

- Dig down to understand opportunities by identifying problems
- Introduce the EC innovation rules; low cost, highly effective tools based on sound principles that all audience participants can apply no matter their role or context
- Rapidly innovate solutions to challenges that are both distant to the current reality and relevant to current demands.

Session Three: Innovation in Action

- Harness ideas participants have built in the previous session
- Learn further innovation techniques grounded in lean start-up and rapid prototyping concepts
- Leave with greater capacity to innovative and support student voice, and an idea that can be practically tested back your school.

Facilitator Bio

Louka Parry

Director of Programs

Education Changemakers

Louka is the Director of Programs at Education Changemakers and is one of Australia's most exciting emerging education thinkers and doers, with a track record of leading dramatic improvements in challenging school settings. He brings expert knowledge in school leadership, new teacher support and organisational culture to the EC crew.

Louka represents the new generation of education leaders as an individual who has traveled to every continent on the globe, learned five languages fluently (including the Indigenous Australian languages Pitjantjatjara and Yankunytjatjara), graduated with two Masters degrees in applied linguistics and education, (studying one of them under John Hattie at Melbourne University) and studied at Harvard University all before he was thirty. Louka has matched these achievements with six years of experience as a teacher and leader, being promoted to Principal at only 27 years old in 2012 for which he was named South Australian Inspirational Public Secondary Teacher of the Year. Louka has spoken and worked with diverse audiences across Australia and the globe including AITSL, Federal Treasury, SVA, BETT, NARIS, Leading Educators Across the Planet, Education We Want and Microsoft.
