

Nexos Chile-USA is a group of Chilean scientists in different stages of professional development that live and perform their research across the United States. This group was born as a result of the basic concerns regarding integration, scientific collaboration and employment of those scientists receiving training in a foreign country.

In general, Nexos aims to represent, coordinate and gather Chilean scientists in the United States in order to generate real scientific collaboration opportunities, actively participate in solving concerns and problems related to the development of our professional career, and create opportunities for discussion of relevant topics towards the generation of scientific policies that could contribute to the development of Chile.

| WWW. |
|-----------------------|-----------------------|-----------------------|-----------------------|-----------------------|-----------------------|-----------------------|-----------------------|-----------------------|-----------------------|-----------------------|-----------------------|-----------------------|-----------------------|-----------------------|-----------------------|
| www.nexoschileusa.org |