

Punctuation & GrammarSkills Development.....

Author of the popular Top Class series, John Murray now provides a course that combines traditional approaches to the teaching and learning of grammar and punctuation with new techniques and activities that support and encourage good learning.

Designed to promote the core principle that learners must see how we use language within authentic contexts, this course will allow participants to explore how we can embed these important facets of Literacy in a meaningful and purposeful way.

It provides practical suggestions on how we can engage children with the English language and encourages each and every child to view themselves as an author, one who uses grammar and punctuation to improve the quality of their work and to express their ideas as best they can when writing for purpose.

To cater for your school's individual needs, each training course can be delivered in-house in one of two ways:
