

EU-EAEU Diplomatic School

What is EU-EAEU Diplomatic School?

EU-EAEU Diplomatic School is a unique opportunity for both participants and future of the EU and EAEU themselves. Participants will acquire new knowledge in regional economic integration process and develop diplomatic skills. Working in groups, delivering speeches, making presentations and trying to persuade other team members are main formats of activities within the School

Why now?

We set an ambitious goal to launch a full-scale dialogue on the prospective EU-EAEU cooperation during the deepest crisis in the EU-Russia relations.

It is important to make a clear message that both sides could no longer develop separately from each other – we all need closer economic and cultural ties, political cooperation built on trust and mutual respect. We need it for Greater Europe. We need it for ourselves.

And now it is time to act as both the EU and EAEU need to elaborate clear directions of their further development.

And we also recognize our serious responsibility to encourage young people interested in international relations to shape a peaceful future for Greater Europe

Who can take part?

Young people from 18 to 35 interested in international relations and world economy studies are kindly invited to take part in the EU-EAEU Diplomatic school

What are we going to do?

EU-EAEU Diplomatic School provides 5 days of unforgettable experience: you can turn into a real diplomat and deal with top agenda international relations issues.

The first two days include lectures of well-known professors and experts from different countries, brainstorming sessions on security, trade, social and cultural aspects of the potential EU-EAEU cooperation.

For the third day we have prepared a workshop in which well-experienced trainers help you acquire and develop essential diplomatic skills.

Finally, last two days are dedicated to the EU-EAEU negotiations model, where each of you will represent either the European Commission or Eurasian Economic Commission.

The main task is the creation of a MEMORANDUM on common security and free trade space between both organizations. After fruitful work, delivering public speeches, preparing presentations all participants convene to adopt this document to define the future of Greater Europe
